MAIL SERVICE

Baggagemen Will Act as Clerks at Publishers' Own Risks in the Future

PROTECT TRAINS

Those Who Stop Any Trains
in the Future, Liable
To Hinder Mail Service

Washington, Aug. 26.—Postmaster General Payne has issued an important order, which to all intent and purpose makes every railroad train in the country a mail train. These trains will be under the protection of the government, and if a strike should occur on any of them and the transportation of mails is interfered with the government will be called upon to give protection to the train crews. Those who interfere with the transportation of mails will be prosecuted.

This order relates exclusively to the transportation of newspapers, and baggagemen on trains on which there is no regular postal clerk are directed to receive and deliver newspaper mail at the station shown in the address. While these packages are in the possession of the baggagemen they will be considered as mail and will be given the same protection as first-class mail, but after packages are delivered at their destination the publishers must run the risk of having them delivered to the addresses.

Affords Protection.
For months the postoffice department has been working out this plan, and officials of all roads gladly agreed to it on account of the additional protection it affords.

Postmaster General Payne's order is as follows:

"Whenever the delivery to outside news dealers of packages which cannot be made by the regular railway postal clerk because of there being no postal clerk on the train used for the transportation of such packages, the baggagemen of the train will deliver to newsdealers packages outside of a mail sack, and while in his custody they shall be considered as mail matter. The baggagemen shall deliver such packages at the place shown in the address.

"Baggagemen are not permitted to receive second-class mail directly from the publisher on postmaster's certificate unless specially authorized by the department through the division superintendent to do so.

At Publisher's Risk.
"Packages for delivery of outside mail, when handled and delivered by railroad baggagemen, will be duly weighed and credited to the railroad company carrying them, the same as other mail matter.

"In order to distinguish packages for outside delivery sent by mail from those sent by express companies or by railroad service, it is required that the publisher shall have printed in bold type on the wrapper of the mail packages for outside delivery the words 'U. S. mail for outside delivery, at publisher's risk.'

Publishers can make arrangements with the division superintendents to have the baggagemen accept packages direct, thus saving the time required to send them to the postoffices.

WHITAKER WRIGHT
SECURITIES POOR

Official Receiver Announces That He Used Valueless Securities.

London, Aug. 26.—Arthur Russell, the examiner of the official receiver's office, who had charge of the liquidation of the Whitaker-Wright companies, was the principal witness today in the proceedings in the case against the promoter of these concerns. He dealt largely with the technicalities of the book transfers of alleged indebtedness of the company to another, and said that upon examining the books of the London and Globe Finance corporation for the period ending Sept. 30, 1900, he found the net losses to be $5,500,000.

At the end of November the London and Globe was indebted to brokers and jobbers to the amount of $3,017,280. This liability, which did not appear on the balance sheet Dec. 5, 1900, was transferred to the books of the sister companies, of which Wright was managing director. In December the London and Globe was dealing in shares of companies which had never been issued and to which no capital had ever been subscribed. Shares to the extent of over $5,000,000 in companies of which Wright was managing director had no market value whatever.

The case was adjourned today. Although it will be formally called up weekly, no further evidence will be taken until Sept. 15.

Place.

(Special by Scripps-McIntee.)
Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 26.—The second fist fight of the present gubernatorial campaign occurred on Tuesday at Bismarck when Judge Wood of the supreme court knocked Gov. Jeff. Davis from the speaker's platform. The assault was occasioned by charges made by Davis concerning the alleged irregularities of disposition in Wall street of zinc mining stock. Four thousand witnesses the assault. Friends separated the combatants.

Locusts in Cyprus.

In Cyprus peasants are paid 40 pounds for every ton of locust eggs they destroy. In some years as many as 60,000 tons are destroyed, which means that some 600,000,000 of locusts have been cheated of their chance of existence. But still they come, and recently the locust swarms were active as ever.

CORPORATE WEALTH
TRANSGRESSES RIGHT

Governor of Nebraska Fours Hot Shot
Into the Ranks of Those Who Violate Justice.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 26.—Corporate wealth and its influence for bad was attacked by Gov. John H. Mickey of Nebraska before the old soldiers at the state fair in an address which he concluded with a war song. He said: "Corporate wealth has assumed certain prerogatives in excess of those justice can justify. Corporate greed has sought by law, intimidations and force to make its position more secure and in so doing has transgressed many sacred principles of justice.

"On the other hand, labor has found it necessary to conserve its threatened interests on the theory of protection. It is evident conditions cannot continue indefinitely as they are.

"Extremists have prophesied final adjustment can come only through war, but I cannot subscribe to such an idea. It is a notorious fact that our political institutions are deteriorating. The will of the people is often thwarted by dishonest practice and the ballot box is robbed of its sanctity and is made the tool of designing knaves.

"Dishonesty among officials is common. The American people do not scan with sufficient care the character of those they nominate to public positions. There is need of reformation."

BRIDGE REPAIRS BEING 'RUSHED'

Street Commissioner Watson is Very Busy Finishing Work on the Fourth Avenue Structure.

Repair work on the Fourth avenue bridge has been commenced and it is expected that it will take two or three weeks before the bridge will be again open to traffic. The work is being done under the direction of Street Commissioner Watson and there are now five or six men at the task. A gasoline engine and pile driver has been rented from Contractor Peters, and twelve or fifteen piles have been placed in readiness on the bridge. One reason for the leaning down stream of the old supports under the bridge, is the pressure of the ice in winter, the river below the structure being mostly open water, but the ice above remaining solid most of the time. This force, beside the continuous flow of water against the upper side of the piles has caused them to lean badly and render the whole structure unsafe. The repair work will be started by making holes in the top of the bridge at the places where new piles are to be driven. When these are all in place the railings and entire upper structure will probably be removed and a new framework built upon the lower timbers. Some of the old stringers will be used. The piles will all be secured with lateral braces so they will be doubly strong and enabled to stand the heavy strain of the ice and water. It has not been decided as to the kind of paving to be used on the remodeled

PUMPS WORK NIGHT AND DAY AT DAM

Constant Struggle To Keep Water at Proper Level Within Fourth Avenue Embankment.

Two pumps, run by motors are now continuously at work at the Janesville Contracting company's plant at the upper dam. Their purpose is to keep the water out of the river bottom so that the work of laying the cement foundation to the new wheel house can be carried on more speedily. The dirt has been almost all removed from the embankment under the tracks at the west end of the dam and the digging for the foundation has commenced. A new concrete mixer has arrived to be used in preparing the cement and comes from Chicago being made by the Drake Stationary Machinery works of that city. Lights have been rigged up over the diggings and near the pumps so that the work can be continued at night.

MANAGER MYERS ENDORSES PLAY

Was in Chicago Yesterday, and Saw Last Rehearsal of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

Manager P. L. Myers of the opera house was in Chicago yesterday to witness the final rehearsal of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" before the company starts on the road. He was the guest of Mr. Whitney, who is the manager of the company. In speaking of the play Mr. Myers says it is the finest light opera that he has ever seen since the early days of Pinafore. The music is catchy and the martial air makes it a veritable Shenandoah set to music. The advance sale of seats opened this morning and the prospects are for a full house. The company that comes here is known as the western company and after this engagement goes to St. Paul, Kansas City, and then to the Pacific coast for a long run.

GIGANTIC ROAD FROM HUDSON BAY

The Proposed Railroad Will Extend Clear to South America in an Air Line.

Plans for a gigantic railroad with a trunk line connecting Hudson bay with British Columbia and Buenos Ayres, South America, and having a network of branches, was disclosed when articles of incorporation of the Pan-American Railroad company, with a capital stock placed at $250,000,000, were filed with the secretary of Oklahoma territory.

The purpose of the incorporation, it is said, is to build a line of railway extending from Port Nelson, Hudson bay, in a southerly direction, crossing the line of the Canadian Pacific near Winnipeg, Manitoba, through North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Indian territory to Galveston, Tex., from Galveston through the Republic of Mexico to the boundary line of Central America, through the Isthmus of Panama, thence through the United States of Colombia to Ecuador and finally through the Republic of Peru to Buenos Ayres on the Atlantic ocean; also a branch line beginning in the Republic of Peru and extending in a southeasterly direction through Chili to Valparaiso, on the South Pacific ocean.

The estimated cost of the Pan-American railway is $250,000,000 and the estimated length 10,000 miles.

The incorporators are: W. H. Dodge, Stephen A. Sheldon, W. J. Pendleton, Eldredge G. Phelps of Shawnee, Oklahoma, and C. E. Wells of Lincoln, Neb. It is not known what outside interests, if any, these men represent. The principal offices of the company are stated to be at Guthrie and Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Within the corporation of the Pan-American Railway company, it is said, will be several construction companies. The largest of these will be the Canadian-American Construction company, among whose directors are said to be Charles F. Beach, Jr., London England; M. L. Muhleman, New York; Charles M. Williams, New York, and Charles B. Williams, City of Mexico. These directors will, it is stated, hold in a general way for the other companies.

A MECCA FOR ALL ATHLETES

Every Feature of Amateur Sport Will Have Its Own Part in the Great Show.

The Amateur Athletic Union's Olympic committee, vested with full power to arrange for the Olympic games of 1904, at the World's Fair, held their final meeting there this week with J. E. Sullivan, chief of the department of physical culture. The members of the committee were President Walter H. Lippinger, of the Amateur Athletic Union, E. E. Babb, Harry McMillan, H. G. Garneau and John J. O'Connor.

As all the athletic events that will be held during the year will take place under the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union, whereby all athletes who compete must be amateurs and registered athletes, the committee discussed at length just how they would proceed in relation to the foreign athletes right to compete without registration. It struck the committee as being only fair that some concession should be made on this particular question, and after a lengthy discussion the representatives of the Western association of the Amateur Athletic Union which control this district, John J. O'Connor and H. C. Garneau, decided that their association would register free of charge all athletes from any foreign country who have with them or send with their entries a statement from the secretary or president of the athletic association governing sports in that country to the effect that they are amateurs and eligible to compete. This settles what promised to be an intricate matter to handle.

The committee continued its work on the line of organizing committees for the control of different sports.

The Olympic Interscholastic committee was appointed with C. P. Senter of Smith Academy, as chairman. The other members are T. C. Bland, of St. Louis and Horace Butterworth of Northwestern University, John S. Rhodes, New York, Interscholastic Association; D. R. James, Princeton; Clive Duval, Yale; Everett Jansen Wendell, Harvard; George W. Orton University of Pennsylvania; C. R. Adams, New York University; and three more representatives to be appointed from collegiate and interscholastic associations in the north-west.

The Olympic committee was appointed as follows: F. W. Gerould, Chicago Athletic club, chairman; G. S. McGrew, St. Louis; C. W. Schuler, St. Louis; L. Stickney, St. Louis; and F. S. Semple. To this committee several other members will be added.

The committee on Irish sports that will have charge of the four days devoted to the favorite sports of Ireland including an international hurling match, international football, will be presided over by John J. O'Connor, as chairman; P. J. Conway, D. F. Cohan, Victor Downing, Judge O'Neil Ryan, Col. Mathew Kelly, J. Sheehan, P. R. Fitzgibbons, James J. McGlynn, Timothy Danaher, P. W. Byrne and M. M. Cregan.

For the Olympic games committee on Roque, Charles J. Jacobus, of Springfield, Mass., was selected chairman.

Dwight Davis was appointed chairman of the Lawn Tennis committee with Howard Elling as the St. Louis member. Other members will be added.

L. J. Doyle, of the Crescent Athletic club, was appointed chairman of the Lacrosse committee. A. G. Batcheller, of the National Cycling association was appointed chairman of the bicycling committee, and J. G. Boyd, chairman of the Cricket committee. Associated on the cricket committee will be Dr. E. Duckworth, of St. Louis.

Base ball. A committee of three was appointed on the national game. Harry Pullman, president of the national league; Ban Johnson, president of the American league and P. T. Powers, president of the National association of professional base ball clubs.

There has been many demands by the lovers of base ball to have America's game represented in the Olympic series, and with that object in view this committee was appointed. The general opinion being that as the Olympic games were to be held in this country it was only fair that base ball play an important part in the program. Endeavors will be made to have the winners of the National and American league pennants play three games under the Olympic auspices for the championship of the world.

Strong men of the world will have ample opportunity to settle the question of supremacy in connection with the Olympic games, an all around dumbbell contest having been arranged open to amateurs. It will be divided into sections, five sections each day. On the first day sections 1, 2, 5, 7, and 8 will be contested. On the second day sections 3, 4, 6, 9 and 10. The sections are as follows:

Section 1. Holding out one dumbbell in each hand at arms length, the bells to be started with the arms perpendicular above the head and dropped down from there to straight out at arms length from the shoulder horizontally.

Section 2. Curling one dumbbell in one hand.

Section 3. Curling one dumbbell in each hand at same time.

Section 4. Tossing up one dumbbell from the ground to the shoulder with one hand.

Gossip For Rail-road Men From All Over the United States

Special denial has been obtained of the rumor that the Wisconsin Central has signed an agreement whereby actual control of the road passes to the Grand Trunk. W. H. Bull, chairman of the board of directors, said there was absolutely no truth in the report, which originated at Ottawa.

President Whitcomb, of the Wisconsin Central, it is understood, has also denied the rumor. For several months the Wisconsin Central and its prospective control have been a choice subject for gossip. Less than a year ago it was said that John A. Gates had secured control of the property. At various times since every railroad operating in the territory through which the Wisconsin Central passes has been credited with the desire to secure possession of it.

Whether any deal is in progress looking to a change of control in the property is not known here.

The Chicago & Alton announces that it will take independent action on Labor day rates, and will put into effect between points on its lines in Illinois and Missouri within a distance limit of 100 miles a rate of a fare and a third for the round trip with a maximum of $3 and a rate of one fare for the round trip within a distance limit of from 100 to 200 miles.

Transcontinental roads propose to put into effect daily from Sept. 15 to Nov. 30 second class colonist rates based on $30.50 from Chicago to points in Washington.

At a meeting of the Chicago-St. Paul lines it was decided to ignore the Soo's action and refrain from meeting the cut rates through Chicago to New York and other points in the east.

The Kansas City-Muscatine cut off the Milwaukee road will be opened Sept. 3 and will give the road a 485 mile line from Kansas City to Chicago.

For the second week in August forty-one roads report an increase in gross earnings of $8,816,282, against $7,932,981.

By the end of August the Pennsylvania will have reduced the number of its employees by about 1,500 men, for the purpose of reducing expenses.

St. Paul Road Fireman Edwin Smith is taking a lay-off for a few days.

Fireman Robert Corruthers is taking a short vacation.

An excursion train of eight coaches went through here this morning from Milton and Milton Junction en route to Lake Geneva. It will return early this evening.

P. C. Eldredge, superintendent, was in the city last evening.

Louis Hanke who has been employed at the U. S. express office at the depot, is now driving for the American Express company.

Wm. Toblan, employed at the freight house, is taking a vacation for several days.

A bulletin has been posted at the roundhouse advising engineers that the blow-off cock must not be used while the engine is coupled to passenger cars or handling passenger trains. When the condition of the boiler necessitates its use, the engine must be detached and moved sufficient distance away from the cars to prevent dirtying or damaging them.

GOOD MAN FOR THE PLACE.

The Milwaukee Wisconsin recognizes the value of the suggestion that Isaac Stephenson of Marinette would make a good man for the Republicans of this state to unite on for the governorship next time and endorses the idea in an enthusiastic manner. The Wisconsin is one of the most conservative papers of the state, and never expresses an opinion on a question so important without first giving a careful consideration to all the facts in the case and weighing every phase of the situation. It is also well known that the Wisconsin is dominated by no particular interest and is not bound to faction in the pending party controversy, so that its expressions are considered as unbiased and independent. For these reasons its opinions are certainly of more value, and entitled to more attention, than if they had come any of the recognized organs of the opposing factions. The Wisconsin says:

"The Oshkosh Northwestern publishes a vigorous editorial in behalf of the nomination of Isaac Stephenson of Marinette for governor in 1904. This would be an excellent nomination, as Mr. Stephenson has common sense, a clear head and is a practical business man. All these qualities are essential to the executive of a great state, but the real obstacle would be that Mr. Stephenson might not be induced to accept. He conducts an extensive business, and is without engaged in such large enterprises that no one can properly attend to his affairs but himself. Yet it is possible that the claims of patriotism may be stronger than his claims of business, and Mr. Stephenson may consent to become the Republican candidate for governor in 1904. In that event Governor LaFollette, who professes to be one of the warmest friends of Isaac Stephenson, would withdraw and give a clear field to the statesman from Marinette."

"The political campaign is more than a year distant, and yet so much interest is already taken in its possibilities that candidates from different sections of the state are being brought out to be placed before the Republican convention which will meet in August or September, 1904. The people demand a first-class man for our next governor, and the people regard Isaac Stephenson as a man of that mold."

In the opinion of the Northwestern the Wisconsin has taken a correct view of this question, and its argument should appeal strongly to the common sense and fair judgment of the members of the Republican state party. As the Milwaukee paper, says, Mr. Stephenson has all the essential qualities to make him a strong and able leader, capable of commanding the confidence and support of all elements in the party and thereby bring about a restoration of harmony and unity, so much desired by the great majority of the party membership. The only possible hitch to the accomplishment of this plan with all its desirable results would be the refusal of Mr. Stephenson to accept the nomination for governor, should the party decide to tender him this honor, and, as The Wisconsin suggests, even though he might feel reluctant on account of the pressing demands of personal business, it is probable the claims of patriotism and party loyalty would prove stronger and induce him to accept."

Every one will agree with The Wisconsin that the people "demand a first-class man for the next governor," and no one can deny that Mr. Stephenson would fill this requirement to perfection. Nor is the Wisconsin the only paper to take this same view of the situation, for there is an increasing call by papers in all parts of the state in favor of the Marinette leader. The fact is generally commented on that he is the man above all others who can reunite the party factions and restore harmony, and if that is what is wanted, instead of a continuation of the old contest and bitterness, the demand for his nomination will become so strong that he cannot refuse to accept.

True it is early to attempt to settle this question, but for certain well known reasons it is advisable to take plenty of time to discuss the matter and give the people an opportunity to make up their minds with calmness and deliberation. "During the stress of a preliminary campaign many of the essential points are apt to be overlooked or neglected in arguments regarding the personalities of the various candidates and aspirants, but the Republicans of Wisconsin should remember that the next election will be one of unusual importance, affecting the success and prestige of not only the state party, but the national party as well. And in order to insure this desired success it is necessary the old factional fight shall be dropped and the state party again brought together in perfect harmony and accord. If the nomination of Mr. Stephenson will accomplish this end every loyal Republican in the state should work for the plan and if this sentiment continues to grow in the manner as at present indicated there will be a joyous and joyful awakening of the Republican spirit in this state, which will result in the burying of all old animosities and an old-time victory which will bring "glory and credit enough for all."—Oshkosh Northwestern.

SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM.

The gift of John Pulitzer to the world at large and especially to Columbia university of a fully equipped school of journalism is one of the greatest gifts of the many donations of millionaires that could be given to the public. It is even greater when considered, than are the many libraries donated by Andrew Carnegie. Pulitzer's gift reaches the masses through the pages of their daily paper. Perhaps Mr. Pulitzer was induced to make his bequest after reading the Chicago American but whatever prompted him it is a princely gift. Mr. Pulitzer knows that a newspaper man cannot be created but must be born so and in realizing this fact Mr. Pulitzer has endowed a special school where these men can be trained properly for their life work. It is a fact that the daily papers are read more closely and wield more of an influence than the majority of books and to have this influence properly schooled is the object of this special school. The press of the country should appreciate the gift and publically thank the donor for his generosity in aiding the coming generation of newspaper men to a better understanding of their work.

TURKEY MOVES.

The Turks has always been known as a wily individual. He has always been able to worm his ways out of difficulties since the days of the crusades to the present Macedonian trouble. Debts slip as gently from his back as does water from a duck. The Sultan remains hidden day and night in an underground tunnel where he hides for fear of his life. He rules his country through his ministers who are fat and sleek and who in turn rule the country through sub-ministers who rule through others. It is a land of grab where the poor people are the ones who pay the fiddler. They are opposed and taxed beyond the power of their country and in turn they rise and are killed by the savage emissaries of the Sultan. Now comes the Macedonian outrages and all Europe is aroused but it will end there.

ISAAC STEPHENSON

Way up north Isaac Stephenson sits like a sphinx of fabled times and smiles at the proposition that he announced himself as a candidate for the governorship at the next Republican state convention. Meanwhile his friends and admirers about the state wait but his acceptance of the honor to redouble their efforts for Mr. Stephenson. The election to the gubernatorial chair would be but a small payment of what he has done for his adopted state. To the Oshkosh Northwestern belongs the credit for starting the boom and it is to be hoped that other papers will fall in line and second their efforts to convince Mr. Stephenson that he is the choice of the Republicans of the state.

Nick's fleet came down from the north and got a few promises and also a nice pleasing notice from the Sultan and went back home. Still Macedonia is being slowly but surely killed out the savage Turkish troops.

Mayor Low of New York has been slated for the next Republican governor of New York state by Roosevelt and Odell. All he needs now is to have Platt's endorsement and he will be all right.

Governor LaFollette has decried the awfulness of Quay, Platt and Hanna so much this last summer that he will not be surprised if these worthies give him scant courtesy in the future.

BEFORE THE GREAT JUDGE

John K. Rice, who died at Lake Koshkonong Monday morning, was held at 2:30 this afternoon. Interment was made at Otter Creek cemetery. The deceased was seventy-eight years of age and had been ill for many months. He was for some years a resident of Milton but had made his home with Ira Bingham at Lake Koshkonong during the past twenty years. He will be well remembered by many who have enjoyed the hospitality of the Bingham homestead.

John Falter John Falter died at his home, 353 South Franklin street, of heart trouble shortly after ten o'clock last evening. His family were present at the time of his death. The deceased was an old resident of this city having been in business here for thirty years. He had been a sufferer from the trouble that caused his death for many years. A wife and five children all living at the family home, are left to mourn his loss.

John Falter was born in Germany sixty-eight years ago. He came to this country when a boy of seventeen and a short time later came west settling in Janesville in the early sixties. He was early identified with the business interests of the city and for thirty years conducted a boot and shoe store. Six years ago ill health compelled him to give up his business and since that time he has been ailing.

For the past four years he has been practically confined to his bed. Mr. Falter was married forty-two years ago and three daughters and two sons survive him as well as his wife. The daughters are Mrs. William Cook, Mrs. Otto Kronitz and Miss Emma Falter. The two sons are John H. and Edward. The funeral will be held Friday morning at nine o'clock from St. Mary's church, Father Goebel officiating. The interment will be at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

BOLD BURGLARS
ENTER HOUSES*TWO ROBBERIES REPORTED AS HAPPENING LAST NIGHT.*EDWIN CASE, LOSES $40*The Intruders Are Thought To Have Been Local Sneak Thieves.

When Edwin Case, who resides at the corner of Logan avenue and Racine street, awoke at five o'clock this morning and arose to dress he was unable to find his trousers which had been left on a chair at the foot of the bed. After searching for some time without result he walked through the sitting room and hall and glanced out the east window. The missing garment and his pocket book were lying on the porch.

Forty Dollars Lost

The pocketbook which had contained $40 was empty but nothing else in the pockets had been removed. Mr. Case hastened to the home of his neighbor, Albert Hayward, across the way and telephoned for Marshal Hogan. Upon his return he made a close examination of his premises and discovered numerous tracks in the vicinity of each of the three doors of the house. The locks and windows, however, had not been tampered with.

Ransack Drawers

The upper drawer in the bureau of the bedroom which contained his watch and Mrs. Case's pocketbook had not been molested. Nor had any of the silverware in the dining room been taken.

Mr. Case is a light sleeper and is easily awakened. Yet he heard no noise during the night and did not awaken until five o'clock, an hour later than his usual hour for arising. He does not believe that he was drugged, but is unable to understand how the burglars escaped.

Took All the Valuables

He changed his clothes last night before going to the train to meet his daughter, Mrs. William Cook, who has been visiting in Chicago. The pocketbook was left in the trousers that were discarded. He had just two cents in the clothes which were worn to the train and this was the sum total of his ready cash this morning. Marshal Hogan is of the opinion that the work was done by some one living in the vicinity.

Another Burglary

The residence of M. H. Gibbs, 6 Clifton street, was broken into during the night and a sum of money taken. It is thought that the burglary was committed about three o'clock this morning, the thief raising a screen in a bedroom window on the first floor and gaining entrance that way. In this room Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs were sleeping but they were unaware of the robbery until the window was found open this morning and the empty pocketbook belonging to Mr. Gibbs was found in the room. The thief went from the bedroom into the sitting room and parlor and here raised a window and escaped. The bureau drawer in the bedroom contained a gold watch and other valuables but was fortunately locked and the contents not disturbed. Nothing else in the house was disturbed so far as is known. It is not certain what time the deed was committed but a nearby neighbor heard a commotion between the houses at three o'clock this morning and saw a man disappearing from the yard in the dim light. There has been much alarm felt in this neighborhood during the summer on account of petty thieving and attempts at burglary. It is the general opinion that the trouble is the work of someone living in the vicinity.

JAPANESE STOCK
MAN WAS HERE*He Secured Cattle for Farm Near Tokio, from Rock County
Stock Farms.

Dr. Yoshimichi Suminokura, owner of a stock farm of fifteen hundred acres near Tokio, Japan, and proprietor of a factory for the production of vaccine lymph in the city of Tokio, has completed purchases in this county, with a view to adding to his large herd of cattle. Through the agency of an interpreter, M. K. Katayama, he secured twenty head of Brown Swiss cattle from Inman Brothers of the town of Plymouth in this county. He also bought one Jersey from H. C. Taylor of the town of Orfordville.

Evidence of the general ignorance prevalent regarding the choicest books in the public library is furnished by the statement made by one of the librarians that the Lawson history of the American cup has not once been referred to during the period that the international yacht races have occupied the center of the stage. And yet the book contains information so complete, so attractive and withal from so trustworthy a source, that it is a matter for astonishment that it has not been called into daily service. The book is so valuable a volume, being an autograph copy de luxe, that it is not allowed to go from the library, but is retained on the reference shelves. The volume was compiled by Thomas W. Lawson, the owner of the "Intrepid," the boat which was disbarred from competition by the New York Yacht club in 1901.

STAR AND MEDAL FOR THE CHIEF*MARSHAL HOGAN PRESENTED
WITH TESTIMONIALS.*THE MAYOR MAKES ADDRESS*Ex-Mayor Victor P. Richardson Gives Money in Behalf of the Citizens of Janesville.

Although the secrecy surrounding the purpose of the meeting had made it impossible to extend a definite call to the citizens of Janesville, nearly one hundred and fifty men gathered at the city hall yesterday afternoon to do honor to Marshal J. W. Hogan. A handsome gold medal and a purse containing over five hundred dollars in gold were presented to him by the mayor and an ex-mayor and commendatory speeches were made by several others.

D. W. Hayes, who has been in the forefront in the movement to raise money to make possible yesterday's expression of appreciation of the head of the city's police force, called the gathering to order and asked Mayor Wilson to state the object of the meeting. The latter responded by asking Mr. Hogan to step to the front of the room.

Gave Gold Badge
Briefly referring to Mr. Hogan's twenty-three years of service in protecting tens of thousands of people and immense property interests, the mayor spoke of the council meeting when J. W. Hogan's name was proposed for the office and the question was asked:

"Who is this farmer's son who aspires to be marshal of Janesville?"

Mayor Wilson then spoke appreciatively of the policy early adopted by Mr. Hogan of keeping the criminals away from the city. He held that it was that policy, adhered to in the present day, that has made the name of Hogan a terror to evil doers and has conferred upon him just fame as an officer at home and abroad.

After enlarging upon the feeling of confidence which the knowledge that Marshal Hogan has been in charge has given to the citizens of Janesville, Mr. Wilson fastened to Mr. Hogan's coat the badge of solid gold, bearing upon the obverse the inscription:

"Presented to John W. Hogan by the Citizens of Janesville, August 25, 1903."

And on the reverse:

"In Appreciation of His Long and Faithful Services as City Marshal."

Presented Bag of Gold
Ex-Mayor Victor P. Richardson then followed. He referred to the emotions which moved him and made it impossible for him to express himself adequately. The testimonial which the citizens were about to present to Mr. Hogan in the shape of a purse of gold containing a large sum of money was described as men rarely deserve such testimonials. You might cover him with medals said Mr. Richardson, and you might shower him with old, but to the people of Janesville he would still be Hogan—a good old Irish name that sounds like the stroke of a shillalah. Mr. Hogan, himself, has come to be regarded as a public utility like the waterworks or the lighting plant. After touching upon the deep feeling of respect and esteem which the people of Janesville feel for Mr. Hogan, Mr. Richardson presented the gold in the following words:

Hogan, this purse and its contents are emblematic of many of the most desirable things of life. This purse denotes economy, thrift, frugality, industry and security.

A Tangible Token
The medal you have just received represents that intangible thing called honor, for which men gladly imperil even their lives, but this gold is the emblem of all the tangible good things of life. It speaks of plenty of health, of pleasure, of contentment, of happiness, and in receiving it we want you to feel that we wish you all these good things a thousand times over and that if in the future there should come to you trials that may seem beyond endurance that you will find solace in the respect and affection of these men who are your friends.

Upon calls of "Hogan! Hogan!" the marshal rose and thanked the citizens for their manifestation of appreciation of his services. He recalled the earlier instance when the people of Janesville had done similar honor by electing him to the office of sheriff of Rock county by the handsome majority of over six hundred in 1890. At that time he was elected on the democratic ticket by the republicans of the city. He expressed the hope to do as good service in the future as in the past, and hoped with the help of God to be speedily cured of his present affliction.

Hogan at the Helm
Dr. J. B. Whiting spoke of the safety the citizens feel in the knowledge that John Hogan is at the helm.

D. W. Hayes declared that a medal had never been given to a more worthy police officer.

Judge C. L. Fifield, who has been associated closely with Mr. Hogan since his election to the office of municipal judge four years ago said that no city in the United States has had a more efficient officer than John W. Hogan. He has no acquaintance with fear and his only favorites are the unfortunate men or boys who are in trouble for the first time.

Dean E. M. McGinnity, who was the last speaker, took exception to the statement that John Hogan knew no fear. He held that fear of his conscience ruled his life and it was that fear which made him exhibit no outward fear.

AT ORFORDVILLE*BELOIT COLLEGE "CO-EDS" ARE WEDDED TODAY.*ARTHUR M. FISHER MARRIED

Rev. R. C. Denison Performed Ceremonies — Hadden-Fisher and Gaarder-Walker Nuptials.

At high noon a double wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Gaarder in Orfordville in which two of the principals were Janesville young people. Miss Ida, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gaarder, was wedded to Walter F. Walker of Dundee, Ill., and Miss Mary Hadden of this city was married to Arthur M. Fisher, also of this city. The brides were classmates of Beloit college.

Rev. Robert C. Denison was the officiating clergyman. The ceremony was performed in the presence of immediate relatives only. Decorations of maiden hair ferns, autumn leaves, and cut flowers made the house beautiful. Preceding the ceremony Herbert Walker of Chicago and Miss Edna Haeger of Dundee sang a vocal duet.

Mrs. Louise Bowberman served the wedding luncheon, being assisted by the Misses Nellie, Bertha, and Luella Gaarder, sisters of Miss Ida Gaarder, and by Miss Katherine Wiggins, her college classmate and friend.

Mr. Walker holds a position of trust with the Illinois Iron and Bolt works of Carpentersville, Ill. With his bride, who is a graduate of Beloit college, he left Beloit this afternoon, bound for Colorado, where they will camp two weeks in the mountains, after which they will go to their home in Dundee.

Mr. Fisher needs no introduction in this city, being a member of the firm of Fisher and Oestreich, attorneys-at-law. His wife, like Mrs. Walker, is also a former student at Beloit college. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher will make a trip through the northwest, returning to this city by way of Minneapolis and St. Paul. They will make their home here at 181 Terrace street, being at home after October 1st.

SPLendor IN RUSSIA.

MAGNIFICENT DISPLAY AT SOME ROYAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

Subjects of the Czar Lead the World in Barbaric Extravagance—Priceless Jewels Worn by Court Attendants.

(Special Correspondence.)

The eyes of the whole world are upon Russia just now, and the magnificence of its people is the wonder of the century. The last of the great European countries to become civilized, it has forged ahead with mighty strides, and to-day shows the highest civilization and the crudest barbarism combined within its vast confines. It is of its higher classes that one speaks when one uses the word magnificent, for there are portions of the Russian empire in which the inhabitants are complete barbarians.

These splendid high-class Russians can teach the world all there is to know of luxury, for in the comparatively few decades since they became as other European nations they have learned to love the splendor of fine things, and no people on earth are so extravagant, so lavish, so imperially magnificent as these subjects of the Great White Czar. Their palaces are the most superb in the world, their jewels the most costly, their dress the most lavish and ornate. Yet, even now, you scratch a Russian and you find a Tartar, and even this untamable Russian nature is magnificent.

A court function in Russia surpasses in pomp and grandeur anything else of the sort in the world, and the barbaric splendor of the interiors where these same festivities are held is more like something from the "Arabian Nights" than what the twentieth century has to offer. No western imagination can picture the splendor of the jewels, the colossal superfluity of display, which the wealth of generations of nobles in Europe, the servility of numberless sultans, Asiatic kings and potentates have heaped at the feet of the czar of Russia.

The czar is master of twelve vast palaces which are his homes, and it is almost impossible to give an adequate idea of the treasures of this ruler of a splendid people, one of which are as splendid and numerous as all other royal treasures of Europe put together, and the coronation crowns of the czar and his consort make all other coronets seem mean and tawdry in comparison. That of the czar is surmounted by a cross formed of six matchless diamonds, and this stands on a single great ruby. Arches of perfect pearls support the central part of the crown, and about the band for the brow are twenty-eight huge diamonds. The crown of the czarina is one solid mass of diamonds, hundreds of them of the purest sort.

At court functions the empress is weighed down with jewels that fairly dazzle one, ropes of diamonds as large as marbles, necklaces and stomachers of emeralds and pearls like pigeon's eggs in size.

And the ladies of the court are equally loaded; heads and throats and shoulders fairly aching with the heavy, splendid gems. A group of these bedecked court ladies is something to remember always, and no fairy tale ever told of such splendor. And it is not only in their jewels that these magnificent Russian ladies astound the world, but in their dress as well. Their court gowns are of cloth of gold or silver, rare hand-woven velvets and priceless brocades interwoven with threads of pure gold. These are encrusted with hand embroidered in gold and precious stones. No such gowns are worn anywhere in the world but in Russia.

These rich court robes are all made in Russia, even the silk and velvet being woven there, but all the rest of the wardrobes of these magnificent ladies are obtained in Paris, and even the reckless orders of American dressmakers pale into insignificance beside those of these splendid orientals, who so love display and striking effects.

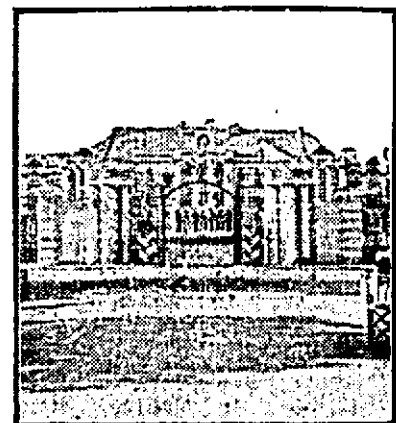

The palaces are fitting backgrounds

Within this palace even the functionaries are laden with gold lace and draped with gold cords, with their splendid uniforms bearing conspicuously the imperial two-headed black eagle. The floors are of costly polished woods, and there are columns and columns of polished marble.

In the state departments the decoration is as dazzlingly beautiful. The ballroom at night rivals any "Arabian Nights" dream ever dreamt. There are two gigantic candelabra of massive Russian crystals, nearly ten feet high, standing on the floor on each side of the huge supper room doors. Rows of orange trees stretch down the banquet hall, and under these the tables are set, and there are hundreds of birds in golden cages suspended from the ceiling, and two marble fountains set in the wall spray their perfumed waters continuously from a succession of shells.

Near the private apartments of the beautiful young empress is a deserted suite of rooms over which hangs an air of mystery and awe. These are the rooms of the assassinated Alexander II. Into them he was borne from the fatal canal bridge, near the Nevski Prospect, with his body below the waist shattered, and here, within an hour, he expired.

In these rooms everything is to-day

exactly as the murdered czar left it. The study is lined with tall, black bookcases, crowned with carved heads of Roman emperors, and in the bedroom, which the czar used as a second study, is the old worn leather chair in which he loved to sit and read his books on history, theology and jurisprudence.

On the mantel is a little clock with its hands stopped at 33 minutes past 3, the awesome moment when the czar's life went out, the pendulum having been stayed by the hand of his faithful valet. The calendar, too, still indicates the date of March 1, 1881, the fatal day. And one might say that in this imperial palace time has been made to standstill.

The old summer palace of Catherine II. is a huge white building of very attractive appearance. It is a royal abode greatly liked by the czarina, and there she goes for picnics. Her private apartments there are lofty, splendid rooms, paneled from floor to ceiling with a marvelously beautiful inlaying of purest amber of priceless value, and so beautifully carved that one is awed by the exquisite wonder of it.

The marvelous, mellow effect of this rare translucent setting, sweeping into carved cupids and nymphs and roses, gives one the idea of what fairyland might be. And there are tall vases and daintily carved cabinets also of golden amber standing about everywhere, catching the light softly and looking like condensed sunshine.

An adjoining room is elaborate in an entirely different way, the walls being inlaid with bits of mother-of-pearl, forming exquisite flowers and fruit. The rich floor is of polished ebony covered with delicate traceries in mother-of-pearl, a fitting thing for imperial footsteps.

Indian relics.

Two Indian spearheads recently found on a farm in West Bridgewater, Mass., further indicate that there are many Indian relics in the same soil. Charles H. Fuller, who has a farm in West Bridgewater, picked up a unique spearhead recently. Six weeks ago, in the same soil, he found the first. The first head was of hard flinty rock, some ten inches long, and is one of a kind that is familiar. The second is a green stone with a vein in it such as runs through marble. No one has been able to classify it.

Coincidence in Meeting.

A peculiar coincidence occurred last week at Broad Brook, Conn., when William Stunz of San Francisco, who has been away from Broad Brook for eighteen or nineteen years, came on a visit to his brother Frank of Broad Brook and on the same day his brother Henry of Florida arrived. There had been no communication on the subject, and the meeting was wholly unexpected. The brothers had not met for a number of years.

Queer Jewelry.

The descendants of the aborigines of Australia are very fond of jewelry, but they do not pay much for it. They use telegraph wire to make bracelets, earrings, and nose-rings, and tear down the telegraph lines for that purpose.

HAILS NEW CATHOLIC BISHOP

Twenty-Five Thousand Persons Paraded at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 26.—One of the greatest demonstrations ever given to a Catholic prelate in the United States was held here in honor of Bishop Colton, the new head of the Buffalo diocese. The citizens turned out en masse to witness a parade of 25,000 men, which, fourteen deep, was an hour and fifteen minutes in passing a given point. The buildings along the line of march were gaily decorated and fireworks were burned in profusion. Floats of various descriptions, were also seen. Bishop Colton, Archbishop Farley and other prominent clergy arrived at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon. The installation of the bishop took place in the cathedral, following which he witnessed the parade. The Polish Catholics failed to participate.

CHILD IS FOUND BURIED ALIVE

Nebraska Boy Hunting Gophers Is Caught by a Landslide.

Callaway, Neb., Aug. 26.—Claus Christensen, aged 12 years, was killed by being buried alive. The boy was hunting for gophers, accompanied by his dog, and when night fell he failed to come home. Searching parties hunted for him and discovered his dog sitting near the dirt walls of a canyon. An investigation disclosed the boy's feet protruding from a mass of earth which had fallen on him. When dug out he was dead. It is supposed he had attempted to crawl into a hole after some wild animal.

STATE BOARD TO TEST WATER

Health Officials to Endeavor to Stamp Out Typhoid Fever.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 26.—A systematic examination of the water used by cities and municipalities through the state is being conducted by the state board of health with a view to stamping out typhoid fever prevalence by warning against the use of such water as is found to be polluted. For several months past hundreds of cases of typhoid fever have been reported, and a campaign is to be waged against the disease, which, in many cases, is traced directly to impure water used by city governments.

CHARLES O'REILLY ... DANGER

Former Treasurer of Irish National League Has Narrow Escape.

Adrian, Mich., Aug. 26.—Charles O'Reilly, prominent years ago as treasurer of the Irish National league, was discovered floating in the reservoir at Oakwood cemetery. He was resuscitated after considerable effort and taken to St. Joseph's hospital, which he had left a short time before. He remains in a condition which prevents his explaining his perilous adventure. He is broken down and almost blind. It is supposed he wandered away and fell into the water. A short time ago he was badly injured by a street car and his experience was doubtless the result of physical and mental impairment.

THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

Copyright, 1902, by J. P. Lippincott Company.

CHAPTER III.

It is a far cry from the African veldt, with its tragedies and its strenuous struggles for Nature's crude wealth, to the neighborhood of the most respectable Old Lady of Threadneedle street, yet under her beneficent shadow there are equally fierce strivings for financial prestige and power.

In a richly and newly furnished suite of offices in Mincing Lane there sat one morning a man whose word and fiat had in less than a year become a power in the city. Upon the outer door was emblazoned in severely plain script the name "Rossiter Kane."

His outer office was besieged, even as early as ten o'clock, by a motley crowd—stock-brokers, promoters, solid men, with here and there a titled name, speculators, clerks, and messengers. The air teemed with suppressed excitement, and rumors of vast deals, enterprises of monetary pith and moment, flew from lips to eager ears. The weekly press printed the wildest gossip concerning the man, and even in the West End clubs one caught his name tossed and banded about from group to group.

"Most astonishing personality," said the veteran stock-jobber, Marmaduke Ashby, to some of his cronies. "How much is he worth? Ask me something easy, dear boy; I know he cleared a hundred thousand in Tires alone. Everything he touches turns out well. Kane's lead is good enough for me!"

"Who is he, and where did he come from?" queried another, not so well informed.

"Says he's an American," was the answer, "but I know he came here direct from South Africa. He must have been in the diamond fields, for he marketed some of the finest uncut stones ever seen in Europe."

"Yes, and that makes me think of another funny thing," broke in young Lord Appleby; "he doesn't seem to know any of the African gang. Wonder if he was ever an I. D. B.?" these cabalistic letters standing for "ill-cut diamond buyer."

"Rot!" rejoined Ashby. "He doesn't belong to the Barney Barnato crowd, that's all. Everything he does is well done, and there's none of their heathenish display and barbaric 'push' about Kane. He's a gentleman at heart, whatever his origin, or I miss my guess. Why, he goes everywhere, and you'll find his name on the subscription list of every hospital and charity in London."

"I'd like to know how he does it," sighed young Appleby, who took an occasional flyer in stocks.

"Why don't you ask him?" said one of the group jokingly.

"I did," was the naive reply. "Says he, 'I've starved, I've tramped, I've almost beggared, but things came my way at last!'"

"Sort of Orphic revelation, that," laughed Rennis. "Do you suppose it can be true?"

"Shouldn't wonder a bit; I'll wager a hat that those cool eyes and that smooth face have looked on some rare doings."

When Kane threw open his Park Lane mansion all the world and his wife flocked thither, no less to be seen than to see the enigma of a man who had literally captured the realms of fashion and finance single-handed.

As he stood to receive his guests, with polished ease, as though to the manner born, one saw a man five feet ten inches in height, of rather spare yet hardy frame, delicately chiselled features cleanly shaven as an abbe's, with hair closely cropped, slightly tinged with gray at the temples, and a pair of blue eyes that had a curious trick of dilating and contracting, of darkening and lightening, according to the mood that possessed their owner.

In age he might be anywhere from 35 to 50.

On being presented to his host old General Scarlett remarked—

"They tell me you have been quite a traveler, Mr. Kane?"

"I have seen quite a little of the world," was the smiling reply, "but very few know the ups and downs that have fallen to my lot. I was born in America, but my father I never saw to remember him. I was a waif, an outcast of the Sierra camps, adopted by an old miner who had nothing to give me but his name and surname."

But for the interruption occasioned by the arrival of more guests Kane might have added that he had been a veritable Jack-of-all-trades—teamster, mail carrier, prospector, miner and gambler in that free-for-all country known as the "West." Drifting around the world to South Africa, he successfully clerked in an up-country store, dealt faro and played the piano in dance-houses in Kimberley and Johannesburg, where he had also picked up some knowledge of the diamond country.

"How had he come by his wealth in diamonds?" found them, like many another man, of course. Success had come to him very suddenly—a "strike," he called it—and then changed the subject.

Men sought his society for the market "tips" he could give; women liked him for the air of quiet power which pervaded every word and action.

Said one titled dame to some intimates over their afternoon tea:

"My dears, his house is a marvel of chaste elegance, and his weekly dinners are a dream! In his waking hours he is surrounded by crowds of clients, guests, or dependents. How he stands the pace is more than I can fathom, yet he is always smiling and debonaire, cool and collected, and never at a loss for a timely word or a suitable remark. Do Lacy says he seems equally at home with dowagers or debutantes, with dukes or cab-drivers, with money-kings or crossing-sweepers."

And it was true, every word of it. One episode, widely reported at the time, throws a flood of light upon the character of this much-convoysed personage.

Kane had manipulated a big corner in "Cochineal Consols," one of the fancy stocks of the day, and had the market at his mercy. Among the "shorts" was a small speculator named Ackerly, who on more than one occasion had run foul of Kane and his schemes. When "settling day" came, Ackerly stood to be ruined if Kane chose to force matters. It so happened that his daughter, Rose Ackerly, who had been studying music, was to make her professional debut the same night at Queen's Hall.

Upon the eventful morning that would seal her father's fate she drove up to Kane's office and besought an interview with the great man. Her eyes suffused with tears, and her voice trembling with emotion, she begged the financier's indulgence for her father.

"Women should not meddle with such matters," was Kane's curt and stern comment. Then—

"Does your father know of this visit?"

"No, oh, no, sir," was the tremulous but evidently truthful reply.

"You must understand, I am sure, Miss Ackerly, that it is merely the fortune of war, and ordinary usage in the city is no respecter of persons," said Kane quietly, and then with a sudden change of manner and a genial smile he went on: "But such a sweet supplicant must not go unrewarded. You may leave it to me—your father shall not suffer."

He stopped her thanks with a wave of the hand, and then inquired: "And how is your recital coming along? Can I be of any assistance there?"

"If you only would!" the girl began, timidly. "One needs so much influence in London, you know."

"Say no more," said Kane, quickly. "I see how it is; you shall have a good house."

Hardly was she gone, a new light shining in her pretty eyes, than Kane dispatched a messenger for 50 guineas' worth of seats, and put his secretary at work addressing notes to the more influential of his friends, begging their acceptance of the tickets enclosed, and bespeaking their attendance at the musicale. As a consequence, Rose Ackerly's fortune was made.

"I can be hard as nails," Kane said when taxed with soft-heartedness antecedent this performance; "Ackerly's is a cur and richly deserved to be made to squeal; but every man should know how to temper justice with mercy. I've been in too many tight places myself not to realize how it feels to be jumped on!"

So there you have the unique personality, outward and inward, then newly launched in the cream of English society.

No smart function was complete without him, and in response to his own lavish entertaining in town during the season, he was deluged with invitations to visit some of the most exclusive country houses in England for the shooting season. Being a bachelor, "with not a relative in the world," as he said, he was naturally regarded as a big fish in the matrimonial swim, and might have married a titled beauty before the summer was over, thus reversing the accepted Anglo-American procedure in recent years.

In course of time Rossiter Kane's round of autumn visits brought him to Denecroft.

Three years had passed from the date of Richard Dysart's self-expatiation. Time had brought no outward change in the lives of those hitherto concerned in this story. Stella Dysart was still reigning mistress at Denecroft. Sir Arthur, as may be imagined, lost no time in putting the all-important question to Marcella Churchill, only to be met with a gracious but kindly refusal and the tidings that his brother had been beforehand. Thenceforward he remained single, nor showed no signs of transferring his affections elsewhere.

Marcella kept her troth, although little had been heard from the absent lad. A brace of letters in the first six months; then a long silence; finally a single impassioned appeal, enclosing his picture, for which she had asked reiterating his undying love, begging her to wait for him, hinting at all sorts of bad luck, but intimating that a certain venture then impending would make or break him. After that silence and suspense.

True to his word, Sir Arthur paid £2,000 to Richard's credit at the family banker's, but it was never drawn against. Whatever he was doing, that boy was clearly determined to sink or swim by his own unaided efforts. The Baronet, on his part, felt too deeply wounded to write or make any overtures at a reconciliation.

So Marcella waited, her beauty enhanced and spiritualized by her faithful love and dally hope.

"He will come back," she said for the hundredth time.

"Of course he will," echoed Stella for Rick had been her favorite brother, and in these latter days she and Marcella learned to love each other as sisters, and jokingly vowed to live together as old maids to the end of the chapter.

Rossiter Kane had met Stella Dysart in town, likewise Marcella Churchill. With the former he appeared to be at once empress, and it would be hard to say which of the two girls liked him best. With Sir Arthur, too, he got along famously, for his was the happy faculty of adapting himself, chameleon-like, to the surroundings or the person with which or with whom he happened for the moment to be brought in contact. He could interest himself in Sir Arthur's old manuscripts and early Italian canzonets, although, as he quietly confessed to Stella, he had no personal appreciation of their beauty or their value.

"I started too late in life, Miss Dysart," he would say, "and what I need most is some kind person to take pity on me, become my mentor, and help me into shape, as we used to say out west."

It needed no oracle to interpret the inference. Rossiter Kane, had the nomination been left to him, would have chosen his mentor then and there, and the post would have possessed a life tenure.

Evidently Kane's time had come at last, and he was hard hit. He had escaped the meshes and the machinations of managing mammals all through the season, only to surrender at discretion to this motherless girl whose thoughts were more for her absent brother than for the chances of picking up a husband.

And, then, of course, she had not known him very long or very well. But this was a matter that could readily be remedied by a mastermind, and Kane took care that Stella Dysart should have plenty of chance to become acquainted with him in the two weeks he spent under the Baronet's roof.

Day after day, although a splendid shot, he would decline to go out with the other guns; morning after morning found him at her side in long rides through the Dorset woods and uplands; night after night in the drawing-room he strove, like Othello, to awaken her interest by recounting strange tales of adventure by flood and field of which, it is but fair to say, he was only occasionally the hero.

Nor were his efforts wholly in vain. Stella Dysart was half-won when her curiosity was excited and her expectation aroused by the many moods of this extraordinary man.

From the instant of their first meeting, Rossiter Kane determined to win her for his wife. Thenceforward life had but one object for him, and if ever a pure and unselfish affection for a spotless maiden could redeem a man and lift him out of his lurid past, here was certainly such an occasion.

Akin to every other man born of woman, Rossiter Kane was a compound of good and evil, with the evil predominating at times, not from love thereof, but from force of circumstances.

A modern satirist has registered the truthful saying that it is easy to be virtuous on five thousand a year. Kane the pariah, the outcast, forced to live by his wits, took life at a vastly different view-point from Kane the millionaire. A change of fortune killed off the weeds, and gave the innate and dormant good in his character a chance to fructify.

If he could only have blotted out certain cruel memories of stratagems and spoils his present outlook would have been serene and full of promise.

WOLVES ATTACK A SMALL BOY

Spring From Wisconsin Woods and Bite Child and Dog.

Berlin, Wis., Aug. 26.—The 11-year-old son of Louis Schroeder while herding cattle on his father's farm six miles west of this city was attacked by four wolves, an old she wolf and three young ones. The boy was leading his dog when the animals suddenly dashed out of the woods and pounced upon the dog and then on the lad. The boy's face and left shoulder were bitten and scratched and the dog was also badly bitten. The cries of the lad and a passing lumber wagon frightened the brutes off.

Veteran A. F. Lee, of 61 Sharon St., carpenter, says: "For twenty years kidney complaint troubled me a great deal, many days I could hardly keep at my work and by rights should have staid at home and doctored. It was seldom that my back did not ache and I have been completely laid up for three or four days at a stretch. When stooping or lifting twinges penetrated the kidneys, the secretions from those organs were too frequent and accompanied by pain. I used all kinds of remedies but none gave permanent relief. Obtaining Joan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Co.'s I took them and after the first three or four doses a noticeable change was brought about. I improved steadily from then on and on completing the treatment I was in good condition and am well now."

FRANK BUNYAN WAS NOT CAUGHT

Get-Rich-Quick Plan Did Not Appeal to His Idea of Business.

Mr. Frank Bunyan, whose name was mentioned in connection with the get-rich-quick swindle yesterday, denies that he is a victim. He had one letter from the concern mentioned, the Daniels and company, but it did not ask him to put a cent into any investment and only made inquiries about a patent recently issued to him.

Merely an Inquiry
In speaking of the letter Mr. Bunyan said: "The letter that I received was merely an inquiry as to whether I would like to form a stock company and have them finance a concern for developing one of the patents that I have recently obtained. I replied to them that it had been assigned to the Potato Flake company of which I am secretary and treasurer and that I did not care to listen to any proposition from them. There was nothing about my investing a cent and I did not send them a penny."

Found His Name
"I think that my name was found on the books from this letter; nothing else could have brought my name into connection with this concern as I am not making investments in any such a concern as the Daniels company appears to be."

The Letter
The letter Mr. Bunyan received was not dated although was written upon paper bearing the letter head of the Daniels company, who announce themselves as dealers in listed and unlisted securities and executors of trusts. They also handle regular stocks, bonds and mortgages and make collections for out of town banks and allow interest on deposits. The letter was received and was sent to Stratford, Canada, and forwarded here.

The Wording
"The merits of the patent recently issued to you have attracted our attention and you undoubtedly have in it the basis of making a most successful stock company. Would you be inclined to such a move? We handle the sale of stock."

ANNUAL PICNIC SUNDAY NEXT

Ho-No-Ne-Gah Park is the Place
Chosen for the Large Gathering.

Next Saturday at Ho-No-Ne-Gah park will be held the annual picnic of all employees of the Janesville Machine company. The entire plant will be closed for all day and the small army of men with their families will go to the famous park for a regulation basket picnic. The merry makers will leave on an early interurban car and will return in the same way in the evening. The day will be spent in ball games, speaking, foot races, athletic contests and other sports. This gathering, which is an annual affair is held for the men belonging to the works and their friends.

FIERCE STORMS SWEEP OVER ATLANTIC COAST

Six Lives Are Lost and Great Damage Is Done—Cup Yachts Are in Danger.

New York, Aug. 26.—In a series of thunder storms having the force of tornadoes, which swept southeast, east and northeast across New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and the New England states, at least six lives were lost and hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage was done.

The rear guard of the great fleet of boats bearing thousands of persons from the yacht race was caught, and only the bravery and coolness of the officers prevented thrilling experiences from becoming tragedies. From all the neighboring seacoast cities and towns come stories of rescue and disaster. Sir Thomas Lipton, in a launch half filled with water, rescued four women from a damaged yacht off Sandy Hook.

Wants Damages for Horse: Patrick Arner declares that the Chicago & North-Western railway owes him damages for a horse which was killed on the tracks of the road in the town of Janesville. His case is being given a hearing before Judge Fifield in the municipal court today. C. E. Dunn is appearing for the railroad and E. H. Ryan for Mr. Arner.

Smoke Nuisance Slightly Abated: The Janesville Electric company has lengthened the smoke stack on its down town power house in such a way that the clouds of smoke issuing from the stack have been slightly decreased in volume. Nearby property owners who declare themselves the greatest sufferers from the alleged nuisance assert that there is yet ample opportunity for further improvement.

A SUGGESTION...

The spirited boy at the end of his summer holidays usually needs a thorough grooming before he is presentable and ready for the fall term of school.

No doubt many mothers just now are thinking now to make the boys look tidy for the first day of school. We think this is the place to find out what to do for them. If he is a little boy 3 to 8 years, a blouse and pants or a Norfolk, or else a little 8 piece suit is just the thing, pictures of which you see here. We have them in many of the different colorings at

$2.00, $2.25
and up to $5

in fact at any price to fit the purse of any mother.

For the bigger boy of 16 years the 3 piece coat, pant and vest suit or a two piece double breast coat with trousers are the best kind. Splendid values at

$2.50, 3.00
3.50 4.00
or $5

We have a large assortment of new suits, and we shall be extremely pleased to wait upon you any day before school opens. Glance in our show window and see the fixings for boys.
